

Outstanding Performance Awards

Karim Momeni

Creativity and extra effort in his endeavors to maintain and improve the university's library system earned Karim Momeni his Outstanding Performance Award.

As head of support services in the libraries' Office of Planning and Administrative Services, Momeni keeps the copiers copying, the heaters heating, and the phones ringing. He also oversees all planning and renovation for library buildings.

Among the accomplishments cited on Momeni's nomination was the transformation of the photo copier service in the Ekstrom library "from a source of embarrassment to a major source of pride." From 1981 to 1985, Momeni updated the equipment, saving the university $25,000 and not

A.C. Jupiter

Before he retired this fall, Custodial Supervisor A.C. Jupiter was described as the hard working type who "is forced to take his vacation" and accumulates more sick leave than he will probably ever use.

In addition to being a hard worker, he has also proven himself as an effective yet understanding leader.

"He has a good relationship with all the custodians in all areas and the buildings under his supervision are all characterized by favorable reports from the occupants," his letter of nomination said.

Jupiter supervised and kept records on 24 custodians. He also ordered cleaning supplies and personally checked on the 11 buildings for which he was responsible.

compiles the Commencement Manuals.

An administrative associate III, she also manages all financial aspects and personnel actions of the Office of the President.

Holder of an MBA from U of L, she is seen by all in her department as "an excellent role model."

Thomas Fitzgerald

Thomas Fitzgerald "is committed to a high standard of productivity both for himself and those who work for him," his nomination says.

Dedication and patience, special training and human empathy characterize his work as co-chair of the University Rape Prevention Committee and as primary investigator of sex offenses at U of L.

division's classified staff retreat.

In addition to her other duties, she served on the steering committee for the Mercer-Meidinger job classification study.

Edward Lindenberger

Edward Lindenberger, electrical superintendent, is responsible for the maintenance and repair of all electrical service to the Belknap and Shelby campuses.

Since taking over the department in 1982, he has turned it into one of the best in the area, according to his nomination, which adds, "He has a very unusual dedication to his job."

His most recent accomplishment was a comprehensive safety program for all three campuses that has substantially reduced lost work time.